Purpose

What is included in the Mutual Fund Tax Guide?

This guide provides information about the 2020 tax forms that you may receive this year.

Will the Mutual Fund Tax Guide help me file my tax return?

While this guide may assist you in preparing your tax return, it is not intended to provide specific tax advice.

Who should I contact for tax advice?

Given the scope and complexity of tax laws, please consult your tax or financial advisor who can provide advice based on your personal financial history and can best assist you in preparing your tax return.

Who should I contact if I have questions regarding my account?

Please do not hesitate to contact one of our representatives at 1-855-774-3863 if you have any questions, concerns, or need additional clarification regarding your account.

Important Dates

Tax Return Filing Deadline

The Federal Tax Return filing deadline for the 2020 tax year is April 15, 2021. Request for filing extensions are also due on that same date (if applicable).

IRA & CESA Contribution Deadline

The deadline to make contributions into your Traditional IRA, Roth IRA, and Coverdell Education Savings Account (CESA) for the 2020 tax year coincide with the Federal Tax Return filing deadline of April 15, 2021.

1099-B Frequently Asked Questions

General reporting

What does Form 1099-B report?

Form 1099-B reports redemptions or exchanges from a non-retirement or non-money market account. Gain/Loss information is provided for covered shares.

The section titled 'Not Reported to the IRS' may contain cost basis information for Non-covered shares. This section may indicate the cost basis method for a transaction (See 1099-B instructions for further information).

What types of accounts receive a Form 1099-B?

Taxable accounts for individuals, trusts, estates, partnerships, S corporations, and certain other institutions. Retirement plan accounts will NOT receive this form.

1099-B Frequently Asked Questions

Basis reporting

How does cost basis information pertain to Form 1099-B reporting?

If you redeemed shares from a taxable account during 2020, this form may include basis information. IRS regulations generally only requires basis information to be provided for Covered shares purchased on or after January 1, 2012. It is generally your responsibility to calculate and report basis information to the IRS for any Non-covered shares; those shares generally acquired prior to January 1, 2012.

How is cost basis reported?

Form 1099-B reporting may contain up to five distinct holding periods, based upon both the length of time the depleted shares were held and the basis reporting requirement of those shares. Reporting of basis information to the IRS depends upon the depleted share designation as Covered, Non-covered, or Unknown.

An IRS basis reporting requirement exists for Covered shares. Basis for Non-covered shares may be available (and reported on Form 1099-B as a courtesy), but it is not reported to the IRS. You are responsible for calculating and reporting basis for shares with an Unknown designation.

Multiple Holding Periods

Each redemption or exchange transaction may contain shares with more than one holding period. In the example below, one redemption depleted shares from three separate holding periods.

Date of Acquisition	Holding Period	Reported to IRS?
12/05/2011	Long-Term	No, Non-covered
04/14/2018	Long-Term	Yes, Covered
08/06/2020	Short-Term	Yes, Covered

- Long-Term: Basis NOT reported to IRS for the shares acquired 12/05/2011
- Long-Term: Basis reported to IRS for the shares acquired 04/14/2018
- Short-Term: Basis reported to IRS for the shares acquired on 08/06/2020

1099-DIV Frequently Asked Questions

General reporting

What does Form 1099-DIV report?

Form 1099-DIV contains reportable dividend, tax-exempt dividend, and capital gains earned from distributions (cash or reinvested) on non-retirement accounts.

What types of accounts receive a Form 1099-DIV?

Taxable accounts for individuals, trusts, estates, partnerships, S corporations, and certain other institutions. Retirement plan accounts will NOT receive this form.

I received a small capital gain or dividend distribution. Why haven't I received a Form 1099-DIV?

You typically will not receive Form 1099-DIV if the total amount of dividends and capital gains for an account is less than $10. Exceptions to the $10 threshold include situations where the distribution was subject to either a return of capital (Box 3), backup withholding (Box 4) or a foreign tax credit (Box 7).

However, even if you do not receive Form 1099-DIV, you are generally required to report all your taxable dividends and capital gains on your tax return.

1099-DIV Frequently Asked Questions

Capital gain and dividend distributions

What is a capital gain distribution?

A Fund capital gain distribution can occur when a Fund buys and sells stocks and other securities within the Fund's portfolio. This activity may create a net capital gain for the Fund. The Fund then passes through this capital gain distribution to its shareholders, which in turn may be subject to 1099-DIV reporting, depending upon the type of shareholder.

How is a capital gain distribution different than a capital gain incurred when shares of my account are sold?

A shareholder capital gain occurs when the shareholder sells shares for a gain in a taxable, non-retirement, non-money market account. See 1099-B reporting earlier.

Do I have to report capital gains and dividends if they are reinvested into my non-retirement account?

Yes, capital gains and dividend distributions are considered income the year in which they are distributed, regardless of whether they are paid in cash or reinvested. The amount of the reinvested dividends and/or capital gains are included in the basis calculation for your account.

5498 Frequently Asked Questions

General reporting information

What does Form 5498 report?

Form 5498 reports IRA contributions, rollovers, conversions, and recharacterizations. Trustee-to-trustee transfers are not reported on this form. Form 5498 also reports the fair market value (FMV) of an IRA as of December 31, 2020, for purposes of determining Required Minimum Distribution (RMD) amounts for the following tax year.

What types of accounts receive a Form 5498?

Individual retirement accounts (IRAs).

Are reinvested capital gains and dividends reported on IRAs?

Capital gains and dividends reinvested into an IRA are not reportable, however, distributions paid in cash are reportable on Form 1099-R.

5498 Frequently Asked Questions

Contributions for 2020 tax year

Why are the SEP and SIMPLE IRA contributions made in 2021 for the 2020 tax year not reported on Form 5498?

IRS rules require calendar year reporting of contributions made to a SEP or SIMPLE IRA. While your investor statement may describe the tax year of your SEP or SIMPLE IRA contributions, the 2020 Form 5498 is required to report only those contributions made during the calendar year of 2020, regardless of the tax year to which those contributions apply.

Maximum Contribution Limits

Taxpayers may contribute up to the amounts shown below for the 2020 tax year. For shareholders that reached age 50 by December 31, 2020, “Catch-Up” contribution amounts are provided. See IRS Publication 590-A (Traditional or Roth) or IRS Publication 560 (SEP and SIMPLE IRA) for further Traditional and Roth IRA eligibility requirements.

IRA Type	2020 Contribution Limit	2020 “Catch-Up” Contribution

Backup Withholding

Section 3406(b) of the Internal Revenue Code requires backup withholding to occur upon certain payments being made to a mutual fund shareholder, including dividends, short-term and long-term capital gains, and redemptions/exchanges.

Generally, backup withholding applies on a taxable account when the Fund did not receive either a properly completed application or IRS Form W-9. Backup withholding may also be required when the IRS instructed the Fund to withhold due to a TIN/Name mismatch on your account, or due to your failure to pay federal taxes. See IRS Publication 1281 for more information.

The backup withholding rate is generally equal to the fourth lowest rate of tax for an individual taxpayer. For 2020, a 24% rate applied.

Capital Losses

Taxpayers who redeemed mutual fund shares at a capital loss during the year may be able to use those losses to offset other capital gains or, in some cases, ordinary income. The IRS has created several rules in order to discourage loss-oriented selling. Two of these rules, wash sales and long-term capital gain distributions, are detailed below.

Wash sales

If you purchase shares of a mutual fund, including reinvested dividends or capital gains, within 30 days before or after you redeemed shares of the same mutual fund for a loss, the redemption will be considered a “wash sale” and some or all of your capital loss will be deferred. The amount of your deferred loss increases the cost basis of the shares purchased which created the wash sale. When those shares are subsequently sold the deferred loss is then allowed. Please consult your tax advisor for more information about wash sale rules.

Long-term capital gain distributions

Capital gain distributions from a mutual fund are generally reported as long-term capital gain regardless of how long you owned shares in a fund. However, if you received a capital gain on shares owned for less than six months, and subsequently sold the shares at a loss, part or all of the loss on the sale of the shares that would normally be considered short-term based on the holding period may be recharacterized as long-term instead. The amount of the loss equal to or less than the capital gain distribution is the amount which will be recharacterized as long-term. The amount of the loss greater than the capital gain distribution remains short-term.

Conversions & Recharacterizations

Conversion

A conversion occurs when you move assets directly from a Traditional, SEP, or SIMPLE IRA into a Roth IRA. Conversions are reported on Forms 1099-R and 5498 based upon the calendar year in which they occur.

Recharacterization of a contribution

Recharacterization of a contribution occurs when the type of contribution is changed from one type (Traditional or Roth) to the other type, prior to the individual's income tax return due date (including extensions).

Regarding a Recharacterization of a Conversion: Section 13611 of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act eliminated the ability, under Code section 408A(d)(6), to recharacterize a conversion to a Roth IRA, effective for taxable years beginning 2018. For Roth conversions that occurred in 2017, taxpayers had until the 2017 tax return deadline of October 15, 2018 to undo the conversion.

Coronavirus-Related Distributions

Section 2202(a)(4)(A) of the CARES Act defines a coronavirus-related distribution as an authorized distribution made to a qualified individual from an eligible retirement plan made on or after January 1, 2020, and before December 31, 2020. Section 2202(a)(2) of the CARES Act limits the aggregate distribution amount, eligible for treatment as coronavirus-related distributions, to no greater than $100,000.

Pursuant to section 2202(a)(4)(A)(ii) of the CARES Act, you are a qualified individual if

- You are diagnosed with the virus SARS-CoV-2 or with coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) by a test approved by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention;
- Your spouse or dependent is diagnosed with SARS-CoV-2 or with COVID-19 by a test approved by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention;
- You experience adverse financial consequences as a result of being quarantined, being furloughed or laid off, or having work hours reduced due to SARS-CoV-2 or COVID-19;
- You experience adverse financial consequences as a result of being unable to work due to lack of childcare due to SARS-CoV-2 or COVID-19; or
- You experience adverse financial consequences as a result of closing or reducing hours of a business that you own or operate due to SARS-CoV-2 or COVID-19.

Coronavirus-Related Distributions

In general, the 10% additional tax under § 72(t) (including the 25% additional tax under § 72(t)(6) for certain distributions from SIMPLE IRAs) does not apply to any coronavirus-related distribution.

A coronavirus-related distribution is permitted to be included in income ratably over 3 years. You may generally repay all or part of the amount of a coronavirus-related distribution to an eligible retirement plan, provided that you complete the repayment within three years after the date that the distribution was originally received. Qualified individuals will use Form 8915-E to report both any recontributions made during the taxable year and to determine the amount of a coronavirus-related distribution subject to inclusion as income for the taxable year.

The Treasury Department and the IRS may issue guidance expanding the list of factors available to determine who may be designated as a qualified individual. See IRS Notice 2020-50 for more information regarding coronavirus-related distributions and repayments.

Absent IRS instructions to the contrary, a coronavirus-related distribution will be reported to you on Form 1099-R as an age-based distribution.

Dividends from U.S. Government Obligations

Some states do not tax their residents on Fund income that is earned directly from U.S. Government obligations. Short-term capital gain distributions, although treated as ordinary income, are generally not eligible for state tax-exemption. A statement indicating the percentage of income your Fund earned that was attributable directly to U.S. Government obligations may be included when you receive a Form 1099-DIV.

Dividends Received Deduction (DRD)

A dividend received by a corporation due to stock ownership in another corporation is included in its gross income. At year-end, that income is taxed to the corporation. When the income is paid out to shareholders in the form of a dividend, it is again taxed to the shareholder. When the dividend payment is made to a corporate shareholder and the distributee corporation subsequently pays these earnings out to its shareholders, triple taxation of the earnings can result. To help relieve this triple taxation, corporations are allowed a Dividends Received Deduction (DRD) for the dividends received from other domestic corporations and from certain foreign corporations.

A Regulated Investment Company (mutual fund) is not entitled to the DRD when computing its taxable income. Instead, because of a Fund's conduit treatment, the corporate shareholders of a Fund are generally entitled to the DRD with respect to the qualified ordinary income dividends passed through by the Fund. It should be noted that capital gain distributions by a Fund do not qualify for the DRD, as these distributions are treated as long-term capital gains by the shareholders. DRD designation must be made within 60 days of fiscal year end, therefore the DRD is generally included as a footnote in the mutual fund's financial statements.

See Publication 542 for more information regarding a DRD.

Excess Contributions

IRA

You will receive Form 5498, detailing the total amount of your contributions. If the excess contribution is removed, you will receive Form 1099-R detailing the amount of the excess contribution that was removed, including any earnings. Please consult IRS Publication 590-A for more information regarding IRS penalties associated with excess contributions.

Coverdell Education Savings Account (CESA)

For CESAs, you will receive Form 5498-ESA, detailing the total amount of your contributions. If the excess contribution is removed, you will receive Form 1099-Q detailing the amount of the excess contribution that was removed, including any earnings. See Publication 970 for more information regarding IRS penalties associated with excess contributions.

Foreign Tax Credit

To avoid double taxation, foreign sourced income already taxed by a foreign country may be passed through to your account as a foreign tax credit. If applicable, Box 7 of Form 1099-DIV will report the foreign tax credit amount, while Box 1a will be increased by that same amount as shown in Box 7. See IRS Publication 514 for more information.

Gift Tax Exclusion

Gift tax is a tax on the transfer of property from an individual to another while receiving nothing, or less than full value, in return. The tax applies whether the donor intends the transfer to be a gift or not. For 2020 a gift of up to $15,000 per donee per calendar year can be given without paying a gift tax. For example, a gift of $16,000 to a donee requires that tax is only paid on the difference of $1,000 for the 2020 tax year. See Publication 559 for more information.

Qualified Charitable Distributions

The Pension Protection Act provision allowing an income exclusion, of up to $100,000 for qualified charitable distributions from IRAs paid directly to certain charitable organizations after the IRA owner reached RMD age, was extended through December 31, 2014. Distributions from a SEP or SIMPLE IRA do not qualify for this type of designation. The PATH Act of 2015 permanently extended this provision for 2015 and future tax years. See IRS Publication 526 for more information.

Return of Capital

A portion of a Fund's distribution may be designated as a return of capital. Such a designation removes the return of capital amount from being considered income. The basis in your account is decreased by the return of capital amount. If applicable, Box 3 of Form 1099-DIV will contain the return of capital amount.

Schedule K-1

A partnership that invests in a mutual fund is eligible to receive Forms 1099-B and 1099-DIV. The partnership is then required to provide Schedule K-1 to each underlying partner, reporting each partner's share of the partnership's income. The partnership is additionally required to file a copy of Schedule K-1 with the IRS. Schedule K-1 inquiries should be forwarded directly to the partnership.
